THE COMPANY

Tokuyama Dental is an award-winning Japanese manufacturer that is recognized for its quality and reliability. They are characterized by cutting-edge technology and developing specialty products that improve daily life. Their constant pursuit of excellence and innovation thrives from a strong link between the company and visionary Dental Professionals who shape the future of dentistry.

When Tokuyama launched its revolutionary Omnichroma product, QCS built a call center team to contact dental offices that were previously sent a sample of the product, to collect product feedback and provide options for purchase through their existing distributor relationships. Not only has the QCS team far exceeded Omnichroma sales goals, we also increased sales on other Tokuyama products through upsell/cross-selling initiatives.

THE CHALLENGE

The company had 2 challenges:

01

Gathering Customer Feedback after Sample Delivery

02

Expedition of Sales after Sample Delivery

THE SOLUTION

Some of the critical components of our Outbound Professional Sales Solution include:

- QCS worked with Tokuyama to develop a regular cadence of file delivery, so that initial calls could be placed to sample requesters within the first week of delivery. Not only were we able to confirm receipt of the sample, our calls encouraged immediate product use, thus shortening the sales cycle - WITHOUT disrupting distributor relationships.
- Built an escalation path for customers who hadn't received the samples requested which assisted with increased go-to-market exposure.
- Incorporated additional product upsell/cross-sell options into the sales strategy, thereby increasing revenue per sale.
- Developed customized sales outreach cadences for specific audiences - i.e. samples requested via trade show attendance vs. mail/email marketing
